MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE DISNEY CHANNEL

Dear Subscriber,

With this issue, you will notice something new in The Disney Channel Magazine: Advertising.

From the start, we intended the Magazine to be an integral part of The Disney Channel—a tool to enhance your viewing, an opportunity to talk back to your television, a step toward a viewer-controlled channel.

Each month, we design, edit, print and distribute nearly 2,000,000 copies across the country. And, since our launch in April, 1983, each copy of each issue has been delivered free to the subscriber.

As we have grown, so have our expenses—particularly our Magazine expenses. So over the last several months we surveyed subscribers to get their opinions on advertising in the Magazine. Their answers were very consistent: If you need advertising to keep the Magazine free to the subscribers, then please do take advertising.

And so, over the next several months, we will be welcoming leading national advertisers to the pages of The Disney Channel Magazine.

Advertising will always be a supplement, not a substitution, for our editorial pages. We will continue our commitment to a quality editorial product, one to amuse, delight, inform and engage our readers.

We will set high standards for our advertisers, seeking out companies that offer quality goods and services to our subscribers.

And, thanks to the support of the advertising community, we will continue to offer the Magazine free to our readers.

In closing, let me thank you for your many expressions of support during the early months of our life as a national television network. You've helped make The Disney Channel the fastest-growing premium television service in America.

Sincerely,

James P. Jimirro

A colorful collection of heroes and rogues in The Disney Channel's version of "Black Arrow" includes Richard Shelton and Lady Joanna (center), Sir Daniel Brackley and his adviser Oates (right) and the feared, admired and mysterious archer known to his enemies as Black Arrow (left)

With the dual presentation this month of "Black Arrow" and "Treasure Island," the Disney Studio's 35-year cycle of adventure films comes full circle. "Treasure Island" appeared in 1950 as Walt Disney's first live-action movie. "Black Arrow" is a 1985 production in the great Disney tradition. Both are based on books by Robert Louis Stevenson, whose stories Walt admired.

It was typical of Walt to reach back in time for film ideas, and when the opportunity to make a non-animated feature arrived, he remembered a favorite tale. As a schoolboy he had reveled in the historical fiction of Charles Dickens, Sir Walter Scott and Robert Louis Stevenson. A few years after World War II, Walt needed a story he could film using war-time dollars that had been frozen in England. Walt went back to England to make three more classics: "The Story of Robin Hood and His Merrie Men," "The Sword and the Rose" and "Rob Roy, the Highland Rogue." Some years later, he would again return to Robert Louis Stevenson and the British Isles for a movie version of "Kidnapped."

"Black Arrow" is the newest link in a long chain of Disney action-adventure films. Adapted from Stevenson's novel and set in the turbulence of England's Wars of the Roses, this exclusive made-for-The Disney Channel movie stars Stephan Chase in the title role; Benedict Taylor as young Richard Shelton; Oliver Reed as his scheming guardian, Sir Daniel Brackley; Donald Pleasence as the sly adviser Oates; and Georgia Slowe as spirited Lady Joanna. Breaking with tradition, however, Disney Channel filmmakers went to Spain to make an

land. "Treasure Island" seemed perfect for that purpose. With his wife Lillian and their daughters Sharon and Diane, Walt departed for London and the challenges of location shooting.

Stevenson's tale begins at the Admiral Benbow inn, and carries his treasure hunters aboard the schooner Hispaniola from Bristol to a secret isle where pirate gold lies buried. Stevenson had written the yarn for his 13-year-old stepson Lloyd Osbourne, but upon its publication in 1881 it was instantly popular with readers of all ages. Walt Disney, aware that he was dealing with a masterpiece, was determined to do it justice.

He assembled 33 of Britain's foremost actors for the all-male cast, led by Robert Newton as rascally Long John Silver and Basil Sydney as intrepid Captain Smollett. The only American was Bobby Driscoll, 13, whom Walt had under contract. Bobby played the juvenile lead, Jim Hawkins.

Walt chose original locales, as described in Stevenson's book, for outdoor filming. The Hispaniola, a three-master built in 1887 and restructured for the picture, put to sea from Bristol harbor. Scenes were shot off the Cornish coast and Falmouth Bay. Walt returned to his Burbank studio glowing with enthusiasm for live-action production. "We realized that as soon as Walt rode on a camera crane, we were going to lose him," one of his animators remarked. It was true.

English movie.

"Progress, if you can call it that, has closed in on many of the historical landmarks in Britain," explains producer Harry Alan Towers. "But we were able to find suitable settings in Spain."

"Black Arrow" concerns the exploits of an outlaw archer from the house of Lancaster, whose emblem is the Red Rose, against a shifty nobleman from the house of York, whose emblem is the White Rose. Drawn into the plot are two young lovers belonging to the opposing houses. Much of their story unfolds in Tunstall Castle, Sherwood Forest and the 15th century town of York.

Guadamur, a medieval castle complete with battlements, moat and drawbridge near Toledo, became Tunstall. Guadamur's interior has been carefully preserved, and the imposing rooms once occupied by Queen Juana the Mad and her son, the future Emperor Charles V, were used as settings throughout the film. Some of them were re-dressed to serve as interiors of York Castle and the chambers of the Earl of Warwick (portrayed by Fernando Rey).

Pedraza, near Segovia, with its maze of narrow, steeply inclined alleys and colorful, porticoed Plaza Mayor, provided the streets and town square of York. Boca del Asno, Spain's national forest of towering pines on the rushing Rio Eresma in the Sierra de Guadarrama range of mountains, doubled for Sherwood Forest. 🐾

How To Succeed In Show Biz Without Really Trying

Tim Conway, who guests this month on Steve Allen's Comedy Room (see page 13), goes back a long way with his TV host. Giving credit where credit is due, Tim says:

Steve Allen started me in show business and I often wonder where I'd be today if he hadn't.

I was going to be a jockey. I weighed 105 pounds in high school and I used to exercise race horses, but I'd never been in a starting gate with a horse. A horse goes from a dead stop to 37 miles an hour right now. So the first time I rode in a race, the gates opened, the horse went from a dead stop to 37 miles an hour, and I was left sitting in midair. I saw the horse go down the track and I said to myself, "I'm not on that horse. Isn't it strange that he should be way down there and I'm sitting here in the air?" At that point I hit the ground and I thought, "This could be dangerous. I don't think I'm going to do this any more."

So then I tried boxing. It seemed like a nice, easy sport. I lived in Cleveland and I went to the Olympic stadium one Friday night and entered a match. The Cleveland Plain Dealer ran a front page picture of me sailing over the ropes and landing in the third row while several people tried to catch me. The caption was, "Those who are not proficient in their art should stay at home."

But by now the army was calling. When I got out, I became a writer for a Cleveland TV disc jockey named Big Wilson who appeared on the air with a canary. Biggie would play the piano and the canary would sing. My job was to write 20 jokes a day for Biggie and clean the bird cage. Since I had never written jokes before, most of them wound up on the bottom of the canary's cage. But from just working around the station, going from one thing to another, I got into directing promotional spots.

One afternoon the station agreed to let me direct a morning film show. I had never directed a television show before. I hired Ernie Anderson to host it, and he had never hosted a show. I didn't know how to back-time a movie, so at the end of 90 minutes our films often went off the air before they were actually over. People called the station asking "Where are the endings of the movies?" Ernie announced that we'd show all the ends of the movies on Fridays.

We tried putting celebrity guests on the show, but it was so bad they wouldn't appear. That never stopped us. Ernie would tell our viewers, "Bob Feller is going to be here," and Feller would phone us and say, "I wouldn't be on that show if you paid me." So at the next break Ernie would announce, "Well folks, Bob just called and he's on his way, but evidently he's tied up in traffic." At the end of the show Ernie apologized. "Here's Bob now...but we're sorry—we're out of time. We'll have to talk to him tomorrow." People caught on to that after a while, but not before we promised them some great celebrities. We had Eleanor Roosevelt. Of course she didn't make it because she was tied up at the airport. Joe Louis was due, but his plane was late, and then the bus coming in was late, so he didn't make it. We had Richard Nixon, too. But strange as it may seem, at the last moment his coat caught in a door as he was coming in the studio and he never made it either.

So I would go on as a guest. Ernie would say, "Our celebrity today is a famous bullfighter from Tijuana." Which would be the first time that I knew what I was going to be that day. I'd lock the camera on "On," I'd come out and sit with Ernie, and I'd be a bullfighter or a trumpet player or whatever the guest was. We used to tape some of those interviews, because they were so bad. And that's where Steve Allen comes in.

Rose Marie from the "Dick Van Dyke Show" was in Cleveland to make some TV promotional spots at our station. But the cameras went out for some reason, so to kill time we showed her some of those tapes. She thought they were funny and said, "I'm going to take these to Steve Allen." Which she did, and Steve saw them, and I went to the Coast and did three of his ABC shows. Looking back, I can thank Steve for my start here in Hollywood but I won't. If it weren't for him, I would probably be a very happy producer of TV advertising spots in Cleveland. ♡

Treasure Island

Bobby Driscoll, Robert Newton, Basil Sydney

Set sail for a secret island where cutthroats pose as comrades and a dead man's bones point the way to buried gold. This Disney adaptation will thrill you with all the high adventure and low treachery of Robert Louis Stevenson's classic tale.

Guided by a pirate's map, young Jim Hawkins (Bobby Driscoll) and his grown-up friends are confident their voyage toward Treasure Island will be a calm one. As they near land, they discover their one-legged cook, Long John Silver (Robert Newton), is a notorious buccaneer who has manned the ship with his mates. But by then it's too late. The pirates mutiny and take Jim hostage.

Stevenson based the character of Long John Silver on real-life Edward Teach, an English pirate who terrorized the Spanish Main in the late 17th century. Although there have been three other film versions of "Treasure Island" (in 1920, 1935 and 1972), Robert Newton is considered the definitive Long John.

TOM SAWYER

Johnny Whitaker, Celeste Holm, Warren Oates, Jodie Foster

Turn back the years to the innocent age of "Tom Sawyer" in this musical depiction of Mark Twain's 1875 novel.

Young Tom Sawyer (Johnny Whitaker) likes to spend his time fishing with Huck Finn (Jeff East), "courtin'" little Becky Thatcher (Jodie Foster), and making up tall tales which horrify his guardian, Aunt Polly (Celeste Holm).

A shadow falls across this happy-go-lucky life in Hannibal, Missouri when Tom and Huck witness a murder in the town graveyard.

Tom realizes he must make a difficult decision—and face the dangerous consequences.

Black Beauty falls into the hands of uncaring strangers

Black Beauty

Mark Lester, Walter Slezak, Peter Lee Lawrence

Relive the adventures of "Black Beauty" in this movie version of Anna Sewell's enduring book.

Black Beauty is a colt belonging to young Joe Evans (Mark Lester). But no sooner have friendship and understanding developed between them than Beauty is separated from his master.

Over the years Beauty passes from owner to owner, becoming a racehorse, a circus performer, a military steed in India, and a worker for a coal merchant. Finally fate contrives to reunite Beauty and Joe Evans, and their lives take still another unexpected turn.

unforgettable films based on some of the world's and adventure, brought to the screen in truly memorable of your family. Don't miss a single one.

Heathcliff and Catherine

Wuthering Heights

Laurence Olivier, Merle Oberon, David Niven

Here is the classic screen version of Emily Brontë's masterpiece. You'll be swept by all the power and passion of what has been called "the greatest love story ever told."

Catherine Earnshaw (Merle Oberon) and Heathcliff (Laurence Olivier), her family's stable boy, share a love so intense it verges on madness. Fearing these overpowering emotions, Catherine decides to wed the wealthy, cultured Edgar Linton (David Niven).

Crushed by Catherine's betrayal, Heathcliff disappears. Years later, he returns to take his terrible revenge.

When Brontë's novel was published in 1850, its tragic events shocked Victorian readers. The film adaptation, made almost 90 years later, enjoyed an instant success.

Black Arrow

Oliver Reed, Fernando Rey, Benedict Taylor, Stephan Chase, and Georgia Slowe, with Donald Pleasence

Escape to the exciting world of medieval England, where a dashing outlaw, a damsel in distress, and a heroic young knight must outwit a treacherous nobleman. This film version of Robert Louis Stevenson's suspenseful swashbuckler, published in 1888, brings to life all the stirring action and color of the 15th century, from revels in tapestry-hung chambers to grim duels in shadowy forests.

Sir Daniel Brackley (Oliver Reed), a model of courtly maleficence, aims to be the wealthiest man in England. He has devised a fiendish plan to murder one ward, his 18-year-old nephew Richard Shelton (Benedict Taylor); marry his other ward, the beautiful 17-year-old Joanna (Georgia Slowe); and take over the land and riches of both.

Only one thing stands in his way: the man called Black Arrow (Stephan Chase). Betrayed by Sir Daniel some years ago, this nobleman-turned-outlaw has returned for vengeance. When Richard discovers Sir Daniel's villainy—and his own love for Joanna—he joins the Black Arrow's dangerous vendetta.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON: THE LITERARY GYPSY

"If this don't fetch the kids, why, they have gone rotten since my day," wrote Robert Louis Stevenson about "Treasure Island," which was to be his first—and greatest—success. Stevenson's own boyish love of romantic adventure gave him the rare ability to enchant children of all ages.

Born in Edinburgh in 1850, Stevenson was a solitary, precocious, and sickly child who loved reading about foreign lands. He began indulging his wanderlust when he was in his early twenties. Although a serious lung disease often brought him to a state of collapse, he toured Scottish lighthouses and harbors (which later showed up in "Treasure Island" and "Kidnapped"); he took a walking tour of France; and he spent time in London, America, and the Swiss Alps. Despite this nomadic life, Stevenson turned out stories and novels at high speed.

Finally, he settled on the South Sea island of Samoa. Here he entertained Samoan chiefs, who gave him the name "Tusitala," literally "Chief White Information." In 1894, Stevenson died, and was buried at the top of a jungle mountain. On the grave is a plaque with his lines, "Home is the sailor, home from sea, / And the hunter home from the hill."

Today, youngsters know Stevenson as a top-notch teller of adventure tales; critics see him as a master craftsman. When his romantic dreams and artistic genius come together, the result is such enduring classics as "Treasure Island," "Black Arrow" and "Kidnapped."

PREMIERING THIS MONTH!

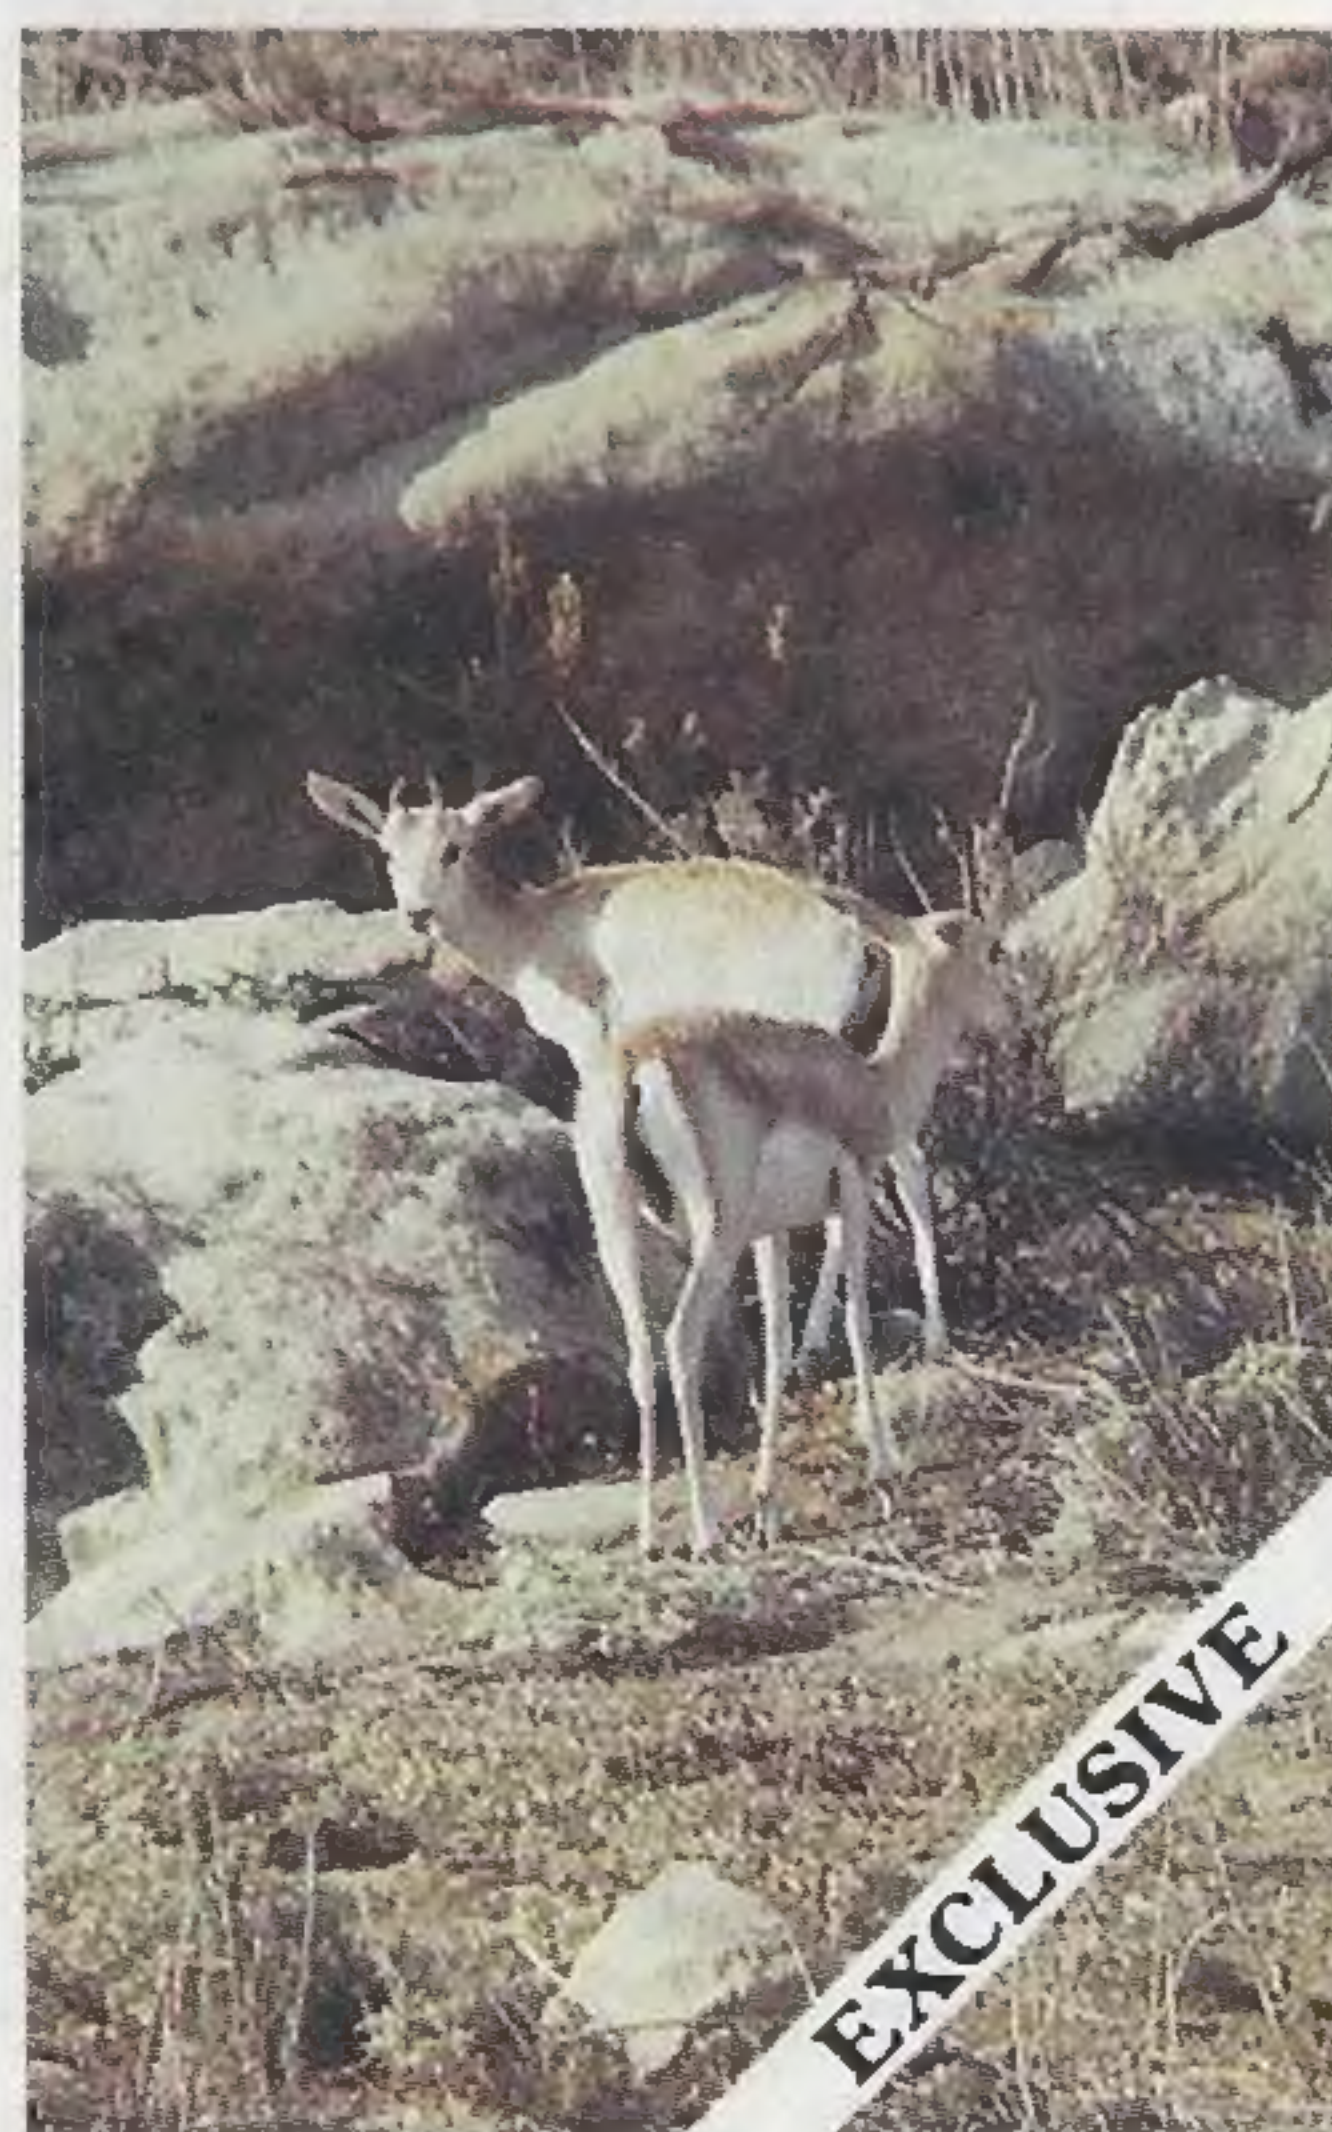

Every week we receive your letters asking for more wildlife programs. You just can't seem to get enough! Now we've found something truly special: a series of spectacular nature films lovingly crafted in the great tradition of Walt Disney's True-Life Adventures. Like them, the "Wilderness Bound" films have won awards and honors throughout the world!

This month, take to the skies on a "Balloon Safari," narrated by David Niven. Join naturalist filmmakers Joan and Alan Root as they navigate their enormous hot-air balloon over East Africa. Alan figured a balloon would be ideal for photographic safaris, providing a silent, steady platform that wouldn't frighten the animals.

But his theory takes much proving. Follow him through his first flying lessons — and narrow escapes from disaster — to serenely soaring ascensions which provide breathtaking views of the veld and its unusual denizens. Then accompany him on a stunning, dangerous drift over Mount Kilimanjaro, "the roof of Africa."

Ann & Tom solve a mystery

When Tom and Annie Edison, bright teen twins with a penchant for science, emerge from their backyard laboratory, it's usually to solve mysteries or rescue their little brother Paul from his endless predicaments. Each of their adventures ends with an animated illustration of a pertinent scientific fact or principle.

Unfortunately, they're both too preoccupied to keep a close eye on Paul in "Boom Boom Edison" (starting January 5). He thinks he's discovered a foolproof hiccup cure. But the formula isn't Paul-proof, and he nearly blows it in a big way by getting the chemical combination confused.

Annie's out in front in "Team Rubber Knees" (beginning January 19). She's training to break a cycling record, but a series of mysterious mishaps and breakdowns as race day approaches has Tom worrying about the outcome — and Annie's safety.

Mountain lion stars in adventure film

Enjoy a Disney tradition every Sunday evening! That's the time to gather your clan together and watch the premiere of a new program which repeats during the week. Walt Disney hosts three special shows airing this month.

"Killers of the High Country," on January 6, explores the dangerous life of mountain lions roaming the Rockies. Walt introduces this engrossing adventure about Chimbica, a female lion cub, and her brother Tawny.

"Where Do the Stories Come From" (beginning January 13) is the question—and Walt Disney is on hand to give you the answer. Before rolling such classic cartoons as "Crazy Over Daisy" and "Straight Shooters," he describes the often surprising events that inspired their story lines.

"In Shape With Von Drake,"

Welsh corgi portrays "Little Dog Lost" on January 20, brings you the ultimate guide to physical misfitness. In this animated celebration of fumbling and blundering, Ludwig Von Drake and Goofy demonstrate comical calisthenics.

"Little Dog Lost," premiering January 27, will tug at your heartstrings with all four paws. After Walt's prelude, you'll meet Candy, a Welsh corgi pup. Candy wanders the countryside until he finds what he needs most—human companionship.

Walt Disney gets a laugh from Robert Benchley

Let humorist Robert Benchley take you through the Disney Studio of yesteryear and show you some secrets of film animation!

In this engaging and rarely-shown 1941 classic, you'll see all the behind-the-screen talent who created the "Golden Age" of Disney movie cartoons actually at work.

Benchley plays a visitor who's trying to sell Walt a story idea. Wandering away from his receptionist-guide, Benchley blunders into every department of the studio. He crashes sound effects stages, story conferences, art classes, recording sessions, model shops and camera setups. He meets artists, animators, writers, ink-and-painters, and finally Walt Disney himself. Along the way he observes steps in the production of "Bambi," "Dumbo" and other Disney films, concluding with a studio screening of "The Reluctant Dragon" — an animated featurette about a fop-pish dragon who'd rather toast crumpets than fight.

Monthly Magic

JIMINY CRICKET THEATRE

Kids on the go and in the know are the heroes and heroines of this month's international children's films. A new pair of adventures begin every first and third Sunday and play for two weeks.

In "The Bamboo Brush" (starting January 5), Benjamin, a young computer whiz, balks at learning about his Chinese heritage until his wise grandfather awakens him to the beauty of Chinese brush painting.

"The Secret of Birdwatcher's Bay" follows. Disregarding warnings about tricky tides and winds, a brother and sister set off in a dinghy to photograph marsh-birds. When they lose the dinghy oars, they're swept into a hidden cove and straight into the unwelcoming arms of nefarious smugglers. Ironically, their only hope of help comes from the smuggler's unusual cargo.

Jamie Clark displays a lot of promise on the baseball diamond in "Someone's in the Kitchen with Jamie" (airing January 20). But if no one shows up for his mom's Home Ec class, she'll lose her job and Jamie will have to quit playing ball to work. His solution—get the entire team to sign up for cooking lessons—sounds easy as pie, until the coach throws Jamie a curve.

Next, "Brontosaurus" pits a young boy against the thoughtless despoilers of a beautiful woodland. The Brontosaurus symbolizes the youngster's fears that the forest and its creatures will become extinct. He rallies his schoolmates to protect a natural resource.

THE HORSE IN THE GRAY FLANNEL SUIT

Dean Jones, Diane Baker, Lloyd Bochner, Fred Clark, Morey Amsterdam, Kurt Russell, Ellen Janov

Morey Amsterdam gets a tip straight from the horse's mouth

Here's a thoroughbred comedy guaranteed to keep your horselaughs coming!

Madison Avenue ad man Fred Bolton (Dean Jones) has troubles. His dyspeptic client (Fred Clark) wants his stomach pill "Aspercel" to be the hit of high society. He gives Fred 24 hours to come up with a campaign.

Fearful of losing his job,

Fred is all but thrown when he sees his daughter Helen's (Ellen Janov) enormous bills for riding lessons.

Then Fred draws on some zany horse sense to solve all his problems. He persuades the drug company to buy a championship jumper and name him Aspercel. Next he enlists pretty riding instructor Suzie Clemens (Diane Baker) to turn his daughter into a star equestrienne. If Helen wins the nation's biggest horse show, the free publicity should put the name Aspercel on everyone's lips—and the pill in their stomachs!

All goes well until Helen learns of the plan, and wilts under pressure. Has Fred been backing the wrong horse—or can Suzie jump into the breach and save the day?

The suspenseful climax of this Disney comedy includes footage from the famed International Horse Show in Washington, D.C. Horse lovers can admire some of the finest jumping stock in the world clearing barriers approaching seven feet in height.

THE SKY TRAP

Jim Hutton, Marc McClure, Patricia Crowley

You're in for high-flying thrills with a teenaged glider pilot and his companion in this aerobatic adventure.

Seventeen-year-old Grant Stone (Marc McClure) is practicing for a cross-country sailplane competition. Marti Benson (Kitty Ruth), 16, is his on-ground assistant. They find themselves framed as drug smugglers by henchmen of an infamous ringleader known only as The Hawk.

Suspense builds as Grant and Marti take to the sky in a desperate effort to clip The Hawk's enveloping wings.

TWO NEW EPISODES THIS MONTH

Still The Beaver

Barbara Billingsley, Tony Dow, Ken Osmond and Jerry Mathers as the Beaver, with Kipp Marcus, John Snee, Kaleena Kiff, Janice Kent, Eric Osmond

Laugh at the lighter side of growing up as the Cleavers iron out the wrinkles of family life with warmth and good humor. Two new episodes of this made-exclusively-for-The Disney Channel comedy series premiere this month.

Suitors are a threat to members of the Cleaver clan in "Girl Talk," beginning January 2. Kelly (Kaleena Kiff) wants to play Sleeping Beauty in her elementary school play, but can't bear to be kissed by the "prince." Meanwhile, Beaver (Jerry Mathers) is worried that his mother June (Barbara Billingsley) will be wooed away by a wealthy admirer.

In "The Gladiators" (premiering January 16), Beaver's son Oliver (John Snee) is looking for new buddies. Cousin Kelly's no good as a playmate—she's just a "goofy girl." And big brother Kip (Kipp Marcus) prefers pals his own age. But when Oliver joins the Gladiators, a squad of young scrappers, he learns that misplaced friendship can be a bruising experience.

ON THE SHOULDERS OF GIANTS

A Disney Channel Special

This gripping factual film traces the rise of rockets from their first faltering flights early in the 20th century to their present ascendancy as manned space vehicles. It also depicts in breathtaking detail the training and launching of America's first astronauts, particularly Gus Grissom and John Glenn.

You'll see other "Right Stuff" heroes too, including Chuck Yeager, Alan Shepard, Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins, risking

Sonny amuses mother and her toddler

What's tender, curious, playful, and full of songs? It's a half-hour with host Sonny Melendrez as he leads parents and preschoolers through dozens of activities and games. Guest celebrities like magician

Harry Blackstone and comedienne Phyllis Diller join the fun in January. Each show ends with a closing song to share with your own little star! Different show daily. Check listings.

THE GENTLEMAN TRAMP

Narrators: Laurence Olivier, Walter Matthau, Jack Lemmon

Chaplin as the Little Tramp

We were well into our series of Charlie Chaplin comedies when you began asking to see these classics again. Your requests now number in the hundreds. So, in response, we are pleased to present "The Gentleman Tramp" as the preface to an encore of our Chaplin film festival which will begin next month.

This chronicle, checked and approved by Chaplin himself, begins with his impoverished childhood in London and ends with his triumphant return to Hollywood. Between those 83 years is a rags-to-riches story told in 80 minutes of film clips, photographs, home movies and rare footage from Chaplin's own vaults. It graphically explains what helped make Charlie Chaplin the funniest and most controversial comedian in the movie world.

How can Bambi's little friend Thumper be pure rabbit—right down to the wiggle of his nose—and a mischievous four-year-old child at the same time?

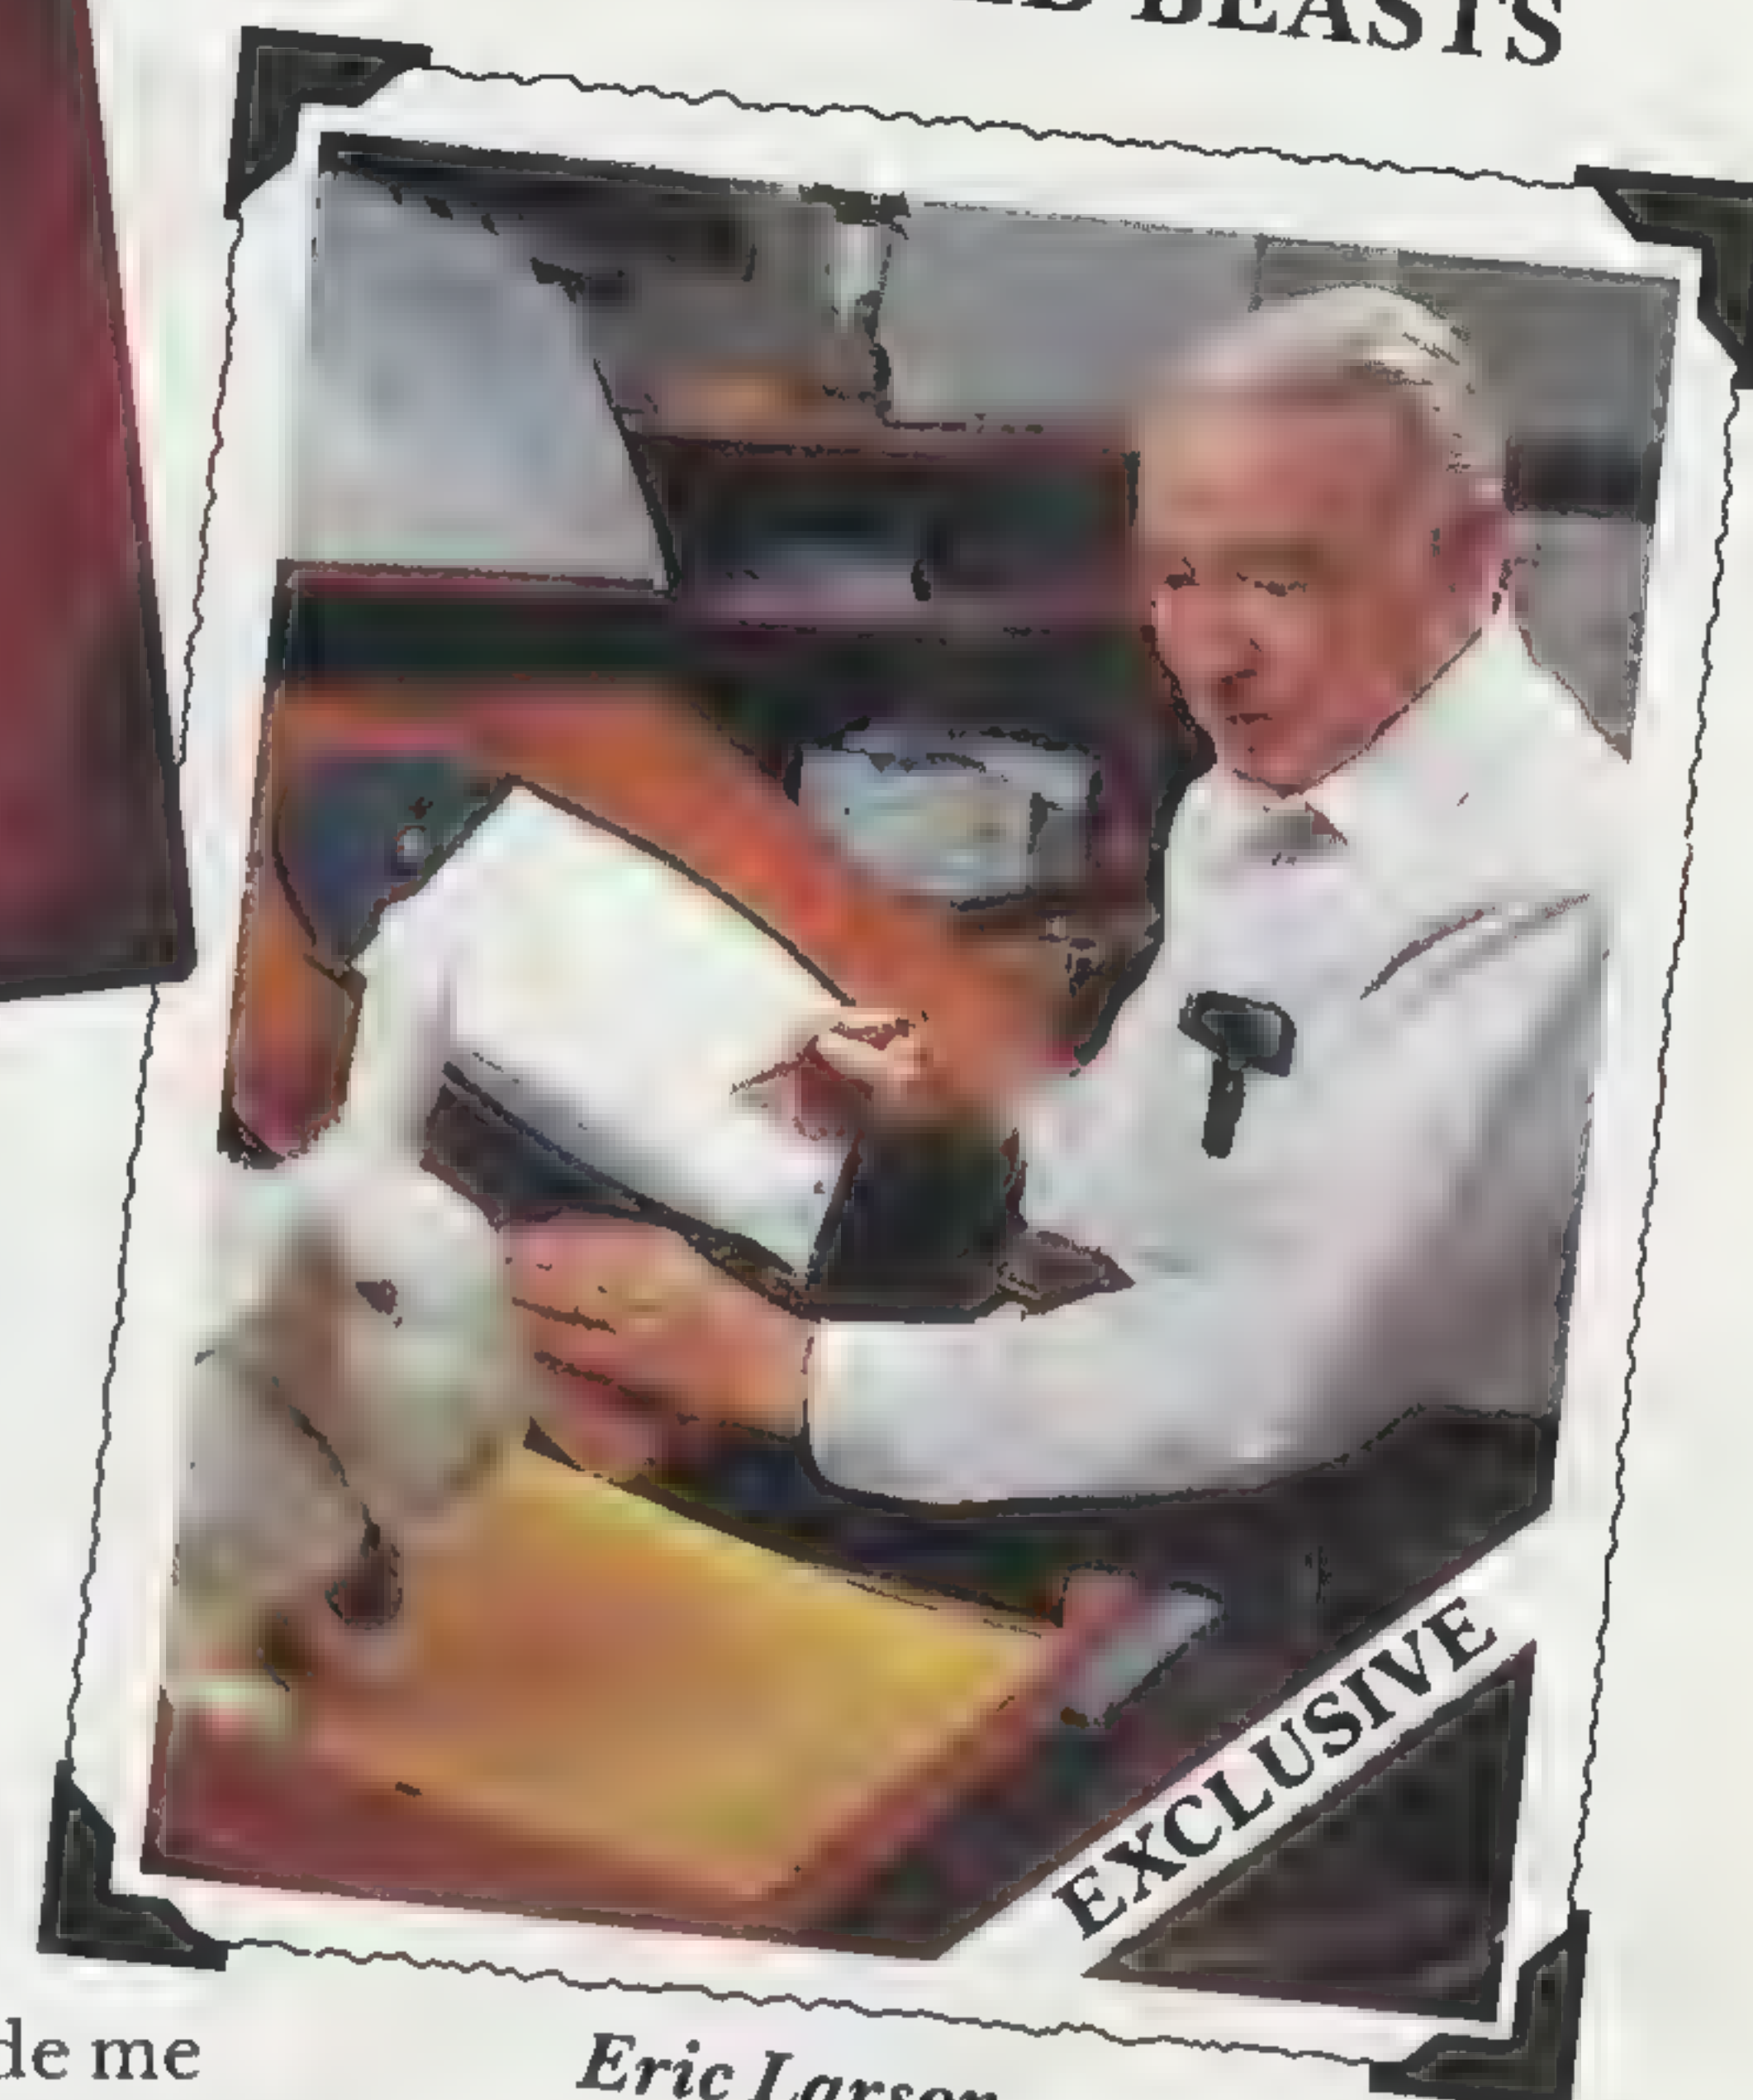

Eric Larson, one of the nine experts on Disney's "Supreme Court of Animation," knows the secret. He specializes in creating lifelike animals which have an unmistakably human personality. Clips from Disney animated classics show some of his triumphs: Peg, the alluring Peke in "Lady and the Tramp," swaying with Peggy Lee's come-hither walk; J. Thaddeus Toad of Toad Hall oozing injured innocence through every pore; and Snow White's little household helpers—frisky squirrels!—

sweeping dust under the rug.

Larson's background gave him a head start for drawing birds and beasts. "Growing up on a ranch made me aware of the animals," he explains. But his amazing technical accuracy comes from extensive training at the Disney Studio. Walt Disney had his animators study animal anatomy and observe live models. While working on Thumper, for example, Larson kept a lettuce-chomping rabbit near his drawing board.

"Mysteries of the Deep"

Descend beneath the waves with naturalist photographers to study strange creatures of the sea. A submerged reef is the setting for this underwater film, which follows its marine subjects from birth to maturity in their continual battle for survival. An Academy Award nominee, it shows after "Treasure Island" (see page 6).

"The Making of 'Black Arrow'"

Go behind the cameras with stars and crew of "Black Arrow" in Spain. Director John Hough describes the process of transforming a script to film, and illustrates with scenes from this dashing made-for-The Disney Channel movie (see page 7).

January 1, 2, 4, 6, 12, 15, 18, 28, 31

"Milestones for Mickey"

Start the New Year with music and laughter by watching your favorite Mouse in highlights of his brilliant career. They include "Plane Crazy" (1928), "The Band Concert," his first appearance in Technicolor (1935), "Thru the Mirror" (1936), "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" from "Fantasia" (1940), and the "Mickey Mouse Club March" (1955).

"Large Animals of the Arctic"

Ever-present danger from wolf packs and ferocious wolverines threatens musk oxen, caribou, reindeer and other animals that graze on the Arctic tundra. This wildlife featurette follows "Winter Fever" (see page 12).

"They're Off"

Goofy plays a dual role as bettor and jockey in this race-track cartoon, appearing after "The Horse in the Gray Flannel Suit" (see page 12).

We're All Ears

Linda Palmer
Subscriber Services Director

Dear Friends:

Now that the holiday rush is behind us, we can sit back, put our feet up and read a good book. (Not if your house is anything like mine!)

If you're looking for reading ideas, just tune in to The Disney Channel! This month we've scheduled some wonderful movies based on classic books, and they're sure to inspire you.

As you read through the magazine this month, you may notice something is a little different. That's right! We've added advertising. In order to continue to provide you with the quality magazine you've come to enjoy, we decided to accept materials from reputable national advertisers. Be assured that in this new area we will be careful to in no way compromise the wholesome, entertainment-you-can-trust nature of The Disney Channel Magazine. In fact, we suspect that you may even enjoy our magazine more with its "new look."

Around our house, we're all enjoying "The Wonderful World of Disney." Are you? Talk about memories! It's so nice to see Walt on television again, and in color! His enthusiasm and fascination with every aspect of life really shines through, doesn't it?

We'd love to hear from you about what you're enjoying, so keep in touch.

Sincerely,

Linda

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you what a terrific job you're doing. I have two children, ages 7 and 10, who now count "Herbies" as we drive.

But it isn't only the children who watch your programs! My personal favorite is "Five Mile Creek," and my parents, who live with us, enjoyed "Steve Allen's Music Room" and "Big Bands at Disneyland."

Mrs. Fred Glaeser
Kinnelon, NJ

QUESTIONS...

Our whole family loved "The Parent Trap." Could you tell me where to locate the music for the song, "Let's Get Together"?

Casey Smith
Nevada, MO

The music and lyrics for "Let's Get Together" are included in "Disney's Greatest Songs," a book published last fall by Cherry Lane, Inc. Check your local bookstores.

I'm an elementary music teacher who watches your Channel with my children. I often get ideas for my music classes. Could you help me locate titles and sheet music for a couple of songs I've heard on your Channel? One starts "You've got to be a football hero..."; the other begins "You can always be number one." I'd appreciate any help you can give me.

Jacquelyn Schaffer
Bemidji, MN

The first song you've mentioned is "You've Got to Be a Football Hero" written by Al Sherman (the Sherman brothers' father). You might be able to find it in an anthology of American pop tunes, or through a company specializing in sheet music reprints. Check with your local music store. The other song, "You Can Always Be #1" was written by Dale Gonyea. It's published by Wonderland Music Company and is currently available in music stores. It's also on the "Mickey Mouse Splashdance" record album found in record and toy stores.

BRAVOS FROM CHANNEL BOOSTERS!

I enjoy The Disney Channel Magazine as much as, perhaps a little more than, my children. My favorite sections are "Exploring the Archives" and "Disney Channel Trivia." Mr. Smith should put all his knowledge into a book.

Sue Peterson
Soddy, TN

"Five Mile Creek" is tremendous! Will it continue indefinitely? I hope so!

Lola Curran
Powell, TN

Because of its growing popularity, "Five Mile Creek," which began with 26 episodes, will continue with an additional 13. They're in production now.

The Disney Channel welcomes letters and pictures from viewers. Send materials for publication to The Disney Channel Subscriber Services, 4111 W. Alameda, Burbank, Ca. 91505. All submissions must include name and address of sender. Please include the name of your local cable operator on all correspondence. Letters may be edited for reasons of space and clarity. All materials become property of The Disney Channel and cannot be individually acknowledged or returned.

☐ THE UGLY DACHSHUND

Dean Jones, Suzanne Pleshette,
Charlie Ruggles

When Mark Garrison slips an orphaned Great Dane pup into a litter of dachshunds, he unleashes plenty of mischief. With his dainty dachsie outlook and larger-than-life physique, Brutus proves to be quite a handful—or two.

☐ BRISTLE FACE

Brian Keith, Phillip Alford, Jeff Donnell

A mangy, trouble-tracking hound and a scruffy orphan boy team up to set the Tennessee hills ringing with laughter with their scrapes. Finally an all-night fox hunt leads them to a surprising discovery.

☐ THE SHAGGY DOG

Fred MacMurray, Jean Hagen,
Tommy Kirk, Kevin Corcoran

Bone up on medieval magic and modern merriment with this comedy about a teenage boy who turns into a talking dog. When he overhears a plan to steal government documents but can't get anyone to believe his shaggy dog story, he has to take matters into his own paws.

Table Talk

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

In "Smoke" (January 2, 5, 10, 13, 16, 19, 21, 24, 27, and 29), Chris, a confused and unhappy teenager, and his family try to make some difficult decisions. Like everyone, they sometimes are mistaken. Several situations from the film are detailed here. Talk about whether or not you think the characters' actions are correct. How would you feel in similar circumstances? What would you do differently? What would you say to the characters if you could talk to them about their problems?

Problems beset Chris and his family

- 1) Although Chris's stepfather, Cal, has forbidden him to have a dog, when Chris finds the wounded German shepherd, he disobeys by secretly keeping it. Do you think Chris is right? What would you tell him if he were your friend or child?
- 2) Cal insists that Chris advertise for the dog's real owner, knowing that Chris will resent him even more. Do you agree with Cal?
- 3) When Smoke's original owner shows up, Chris turns on Cal and his mother with angry, hurtful words, then runs away from home. Do you think he should try harder to accept his stepfather? What would you do if you were Chris? Does running away ever solve a problem? Can you think of a better way?
- 4) Leroy, Susie and Cal all know that Chris is leaving, but none of them try to stop him. Later, Cal even discourages his wife from calling the police. With whom do you agree, Cal or Chris's mother? If you were Susie or Leroy, would you keep quiet about Chris's departure? When should you keep a secret? When should you tell?

Exploring the Archives

Dave Smith, archivist for Walt Disney Productions, answers questions and provides information about the studio's history and its productions.

While watching "The Absent-Minded Professor" and "Herbie Rides Again," I noticed that Keenan Wynn played a character named Alonzo Hawk in both. Was this a coincidence?—Mrs. R.E., Fulton, Texas

Keenan Wynn also played Alonzo Hawk in one additional film, "Son of Flubber." All of these films were written and produced by the same man—Bill Walsh. Walsh's string of high-grossing Disney films made him one of the top producers in Hollywood.

Is the covered bridge, observed in several Disney movies, located at the Disney Studio?—J.R., Washington, D.C.

No, that often-photographed bridge is at Disney's Golden Oak Ranch, in Placerita Canyon about 25 miles north of Burbank. Purchased in 1959, the 691-acre ranch has served as an ideal setting for such films as "Follow Me, Boys," "The Parent Trap," "The Apple Dumpling Gang" and "The Horse in the Gray Flannel Suit" (see page 12).

Other studios use the ranch also, and it has been featured in "Mame," "Roots," "The Waltons" and "Little House on the Prairie." With 20th Century-Fox and Paramount selling their large ranches in recent years, the Golden Oak Ranch has become practically the only surviving movie ranch.

Fred MacMurray is too busy to study the scenic covered bridge behind him

Whatever happened to child actor Bobby Driscoll?—M.P., Reno, Nev.

Bobby appeared in nine films before coming to Disney at age nine for "Song of the South." Later he did "So Dear to My Heart," "Melody Time," "Treasure Island" (see page 6), and the voice of Peter Pan. He continued in the movies and on TV through the 1950s, but he died tragically, unknown and a pauper, in New York at age 31 in 1968.

DISNEY CHANNEL TRIVIA

Ron Howard, who acted in "Smoke" (see page 11), came back to the Disney Studio 14 years later to direct last year's Touchstone release, "Splash."

Disneyland will be celebrating its 30th anniversary all year. It opened on July 17, 1955.

A famous signpost at the Disney Studio designates Mickey Avenue and Dopey Drive. It was placed there for "The Reluctant Dragon" (see page 10) in 1941 and was never removed.

Famous intersection at Disney Studio

Ludwig Von Drake, Donald Duck's erudite uncle, was created for the Disney television show, making his debut on the first color program in 1961. Catch him on The Disney Channel this month in "In Shape with Von Drake" (see page 9).

"Little Dog Lost" (see page 9) is based on the well-known book for young people by Newbery Award-winning author Meindert de Jong.

25 Ways To Grow An Eager Reader!

Ever heard a conversation like this around your house?

"Boy, what a great movie!"

"It came from a great book. Would you like to read it?"

It's not necessarily imaginary. Educators have long known that films and television programs can stimulate reading interest. This month's selection of movies based on literary classics (see pages 6 & 7) provides an outstanding example of how TV can help you turn young viewers into young—and eager—readers.

Many subscribers tell us that increased interest in books is a major benefit gained from viewing The Disney Channel. But TV viewing is just one way to spark interest in books. "Just one more

Infancy — Starting Young

According to experts, reading to babies develops vital listening and recognition skills as well as providing a comforting sense of closeness. When reading to your infant keep these tips in mind:

1 Be relaxed, calm, and comfortable. This is perfect "cuddling" time for you and your baby.

2 Read something YOU enjoy. Their soothing, musical language makes poetry and nursery rhymes especially appropriate.

3 Sing the words, making up your own tunes as you go.

4 Select books with large, simple, colorful pictures. Hold the page at the child's eye level. Point out and talk about the illustrations. Remember that infants respond well to pictures of faces.

5 Allow your child to touch and hold the book, and, later, help turn the pages.

6 Repeat favorite books. (See the list on the next page for some suggestions.)

7 Remain responsive to your baby's mood, and end the session at the first sign of restlessness.

Toddlers (1-3) — Build Basic Skills

Books extend the world which toddlers are so busy exploring. Regular reading builds their language skills by increasing familiarity with concepts such as story, character, plot, and letter sounds. Reading time with your small bundle of energy becomes more enjoyable and productive if you:

8 Read frequently! Choose a routine place and a time when your child is most likely to sit quietly (such as before bed or naptime).

9 Involve your listener by discussing the text and asking questions.

10 Let your child select the books, but add one or two of YOUR choice to gradually widen the reading experience.

11 Stay in tune with the toddler's short attention span and react accordingly. Nothing's gained by forcing a restless child to listen.

12 Encourage independent interest by placing books in different parts of the house. Set up a reading corner with a small chair or table. Provide a box, bag or old purse for your toddler to tote favorite volumes around.

13 Teach proper handling of books.

Remove them with a firm "no" when necessary.

14 Build language skills by providing big crayons and grocery bags to "write" on; modeling clay and pipe cleaners to shape letters; a blackboard, and fingerpaints or soap "crayons."

Preschoolers (3-5) — Increase Involvement

Preschoolers pride themselves on the ability to identify words and phrases. Some will memorize entire passages of favorite books to "read" aloud. You can keep pace with your preschooler's insatiable drive to learn more with these ideas:

15 Expand your reading diet to include non-fiction, children's magazines, Sunday comics, catalogs and even short human-interest newspaper articles.

16 Encourage your child to create simple books, and "write" to friends or relatives.

17 Start a neighborhood story hour. Ask other moms to take turns hosting on alternate weeks.

18 Tape favorite stories so your preschooler can "read" along in the books.

19 Add library trips to your regular outings. Before the first visit, explain the procedure for borrowing and book care. If possible, meet the librarian. Allow lots of time for browsing, but limit the book selection.

School Age (5 and Up) — Keep Interest High

"I read it myself!" is surely one of the most triumphant statements a child can make. Here's how you can help sustain that precious enthusiasm.

20 Acquaint yourself with your school's reading programs.

21 Stretch your repertoire. Try longer, chaptered books. Occasionally read materials above your child's developmental level.

22 When your beginner reads to you, alternate pages to take the pressure off.

23 Record your child reading aloud. Boost self-confidence by asking your "bookworm" to read to younger siblings or to you while you're doing chores.

24 Follow through on interests piqued by reading. Visit local museums or historical sites related to those you've read about. Listen to the kind of music or try a food or craft mentioned in a favorite book. Check out art books and look at masterpieces together.

25 Be generous with praise and keep a positive attitude. Reading development doesn't always progress in a straight line.

Your own example as parents contributes the most to nurturing eager readers. If your children grow up surrounded by books and printed materials, if they see you read for enjoyment and information, chances are excellent that they'll inherit your own enthusiasm and a lifetime endowment of pleasure — the joy of reading.

CHOOSING SOMETHING GOOD TO READ

Although selecting books you and your child will both enjoy depends on your individual preferences, the following guidelines will prove useful when you are confronted with many choices.

Ask yourself:

- Are the illustrations plentiful, clear and large? Do they match the text and help explain it? Are they visually interesting, with enough originality, action, color and vitality?

- Is the text well written? Is the use of language original and creative? Are the thoughts expressed directly and positively? Is the story interesting? Are familiar words and phrases repeated frequently?

- Is the book sturdily bound in a durable cover? Is the paper high quality? Are the pages uncluttered, with enough white space for eyes to focus easily?

- Is this a book you can read many times over without tiring of it? Will it captivate your child's imagination?

Try the titles here to get started on hours of reading adventures. Frequently found on lists compiled by educators and librarians, they represent just a portion of the excellent literature waiting for you to discover, share and treasure with your children.

SECTION

Hi there!

I always think of the New Year as a chance to try something new, change a habit, or just get a nice fresh start on everything!

There's a lot of great adventure ahead on The Disney Channel in 1985. Why just this month you can fight injustice in Medieval England with "Black Arrow," dig for pirate gold on "Treasure Island," or steer a raft down the Mississippi with "Tom Sawyer."

Make one of YOUR New Year's resolutions to have a great time with us on The Disney Channel. We're looking forward to a lot of fun together.

Your pal,

MICKEY MOUSE

P.S. Disney's animated film, "Robin Hood" is coming to The Disney Channel. Send us your drawings of Robin Hood now for the Magazine and "Small World."

Make a Cardboard Castle Fit for a King!

TO BUILD YOUR MODEL YOU'LL NEED:

Plenty of file folders, flattened and trimmed so all edges are even. (Legal size are best.)

ruler	glue
pencils	scissors
markers	string

KEEP, TURRETS AND TOWERS:

1) Mark a line 1" in on a short side of a file folder. Score by running a scissors point down the line. DO NOT CUT.

Fold along the line.

2) Fold the folder in half once, then again to make four equal walls. Open the folder, mark a line  $\frac{1}{2}$ " from the top edge, then mark 1" intervals along that line. Cut at every other interval to form the crenels in the parapets.

Now, glue the 1" strip to the wall to make the keep stand upright.

Make other towers and turrets using the same steps and different-sized rectangles.

3) Create a ramp leading into the keep by cutting and folding a piece of folder as shown here.

WALLS:

1) Make them as long as you choose. The longer the walls, the larger your castle will be.

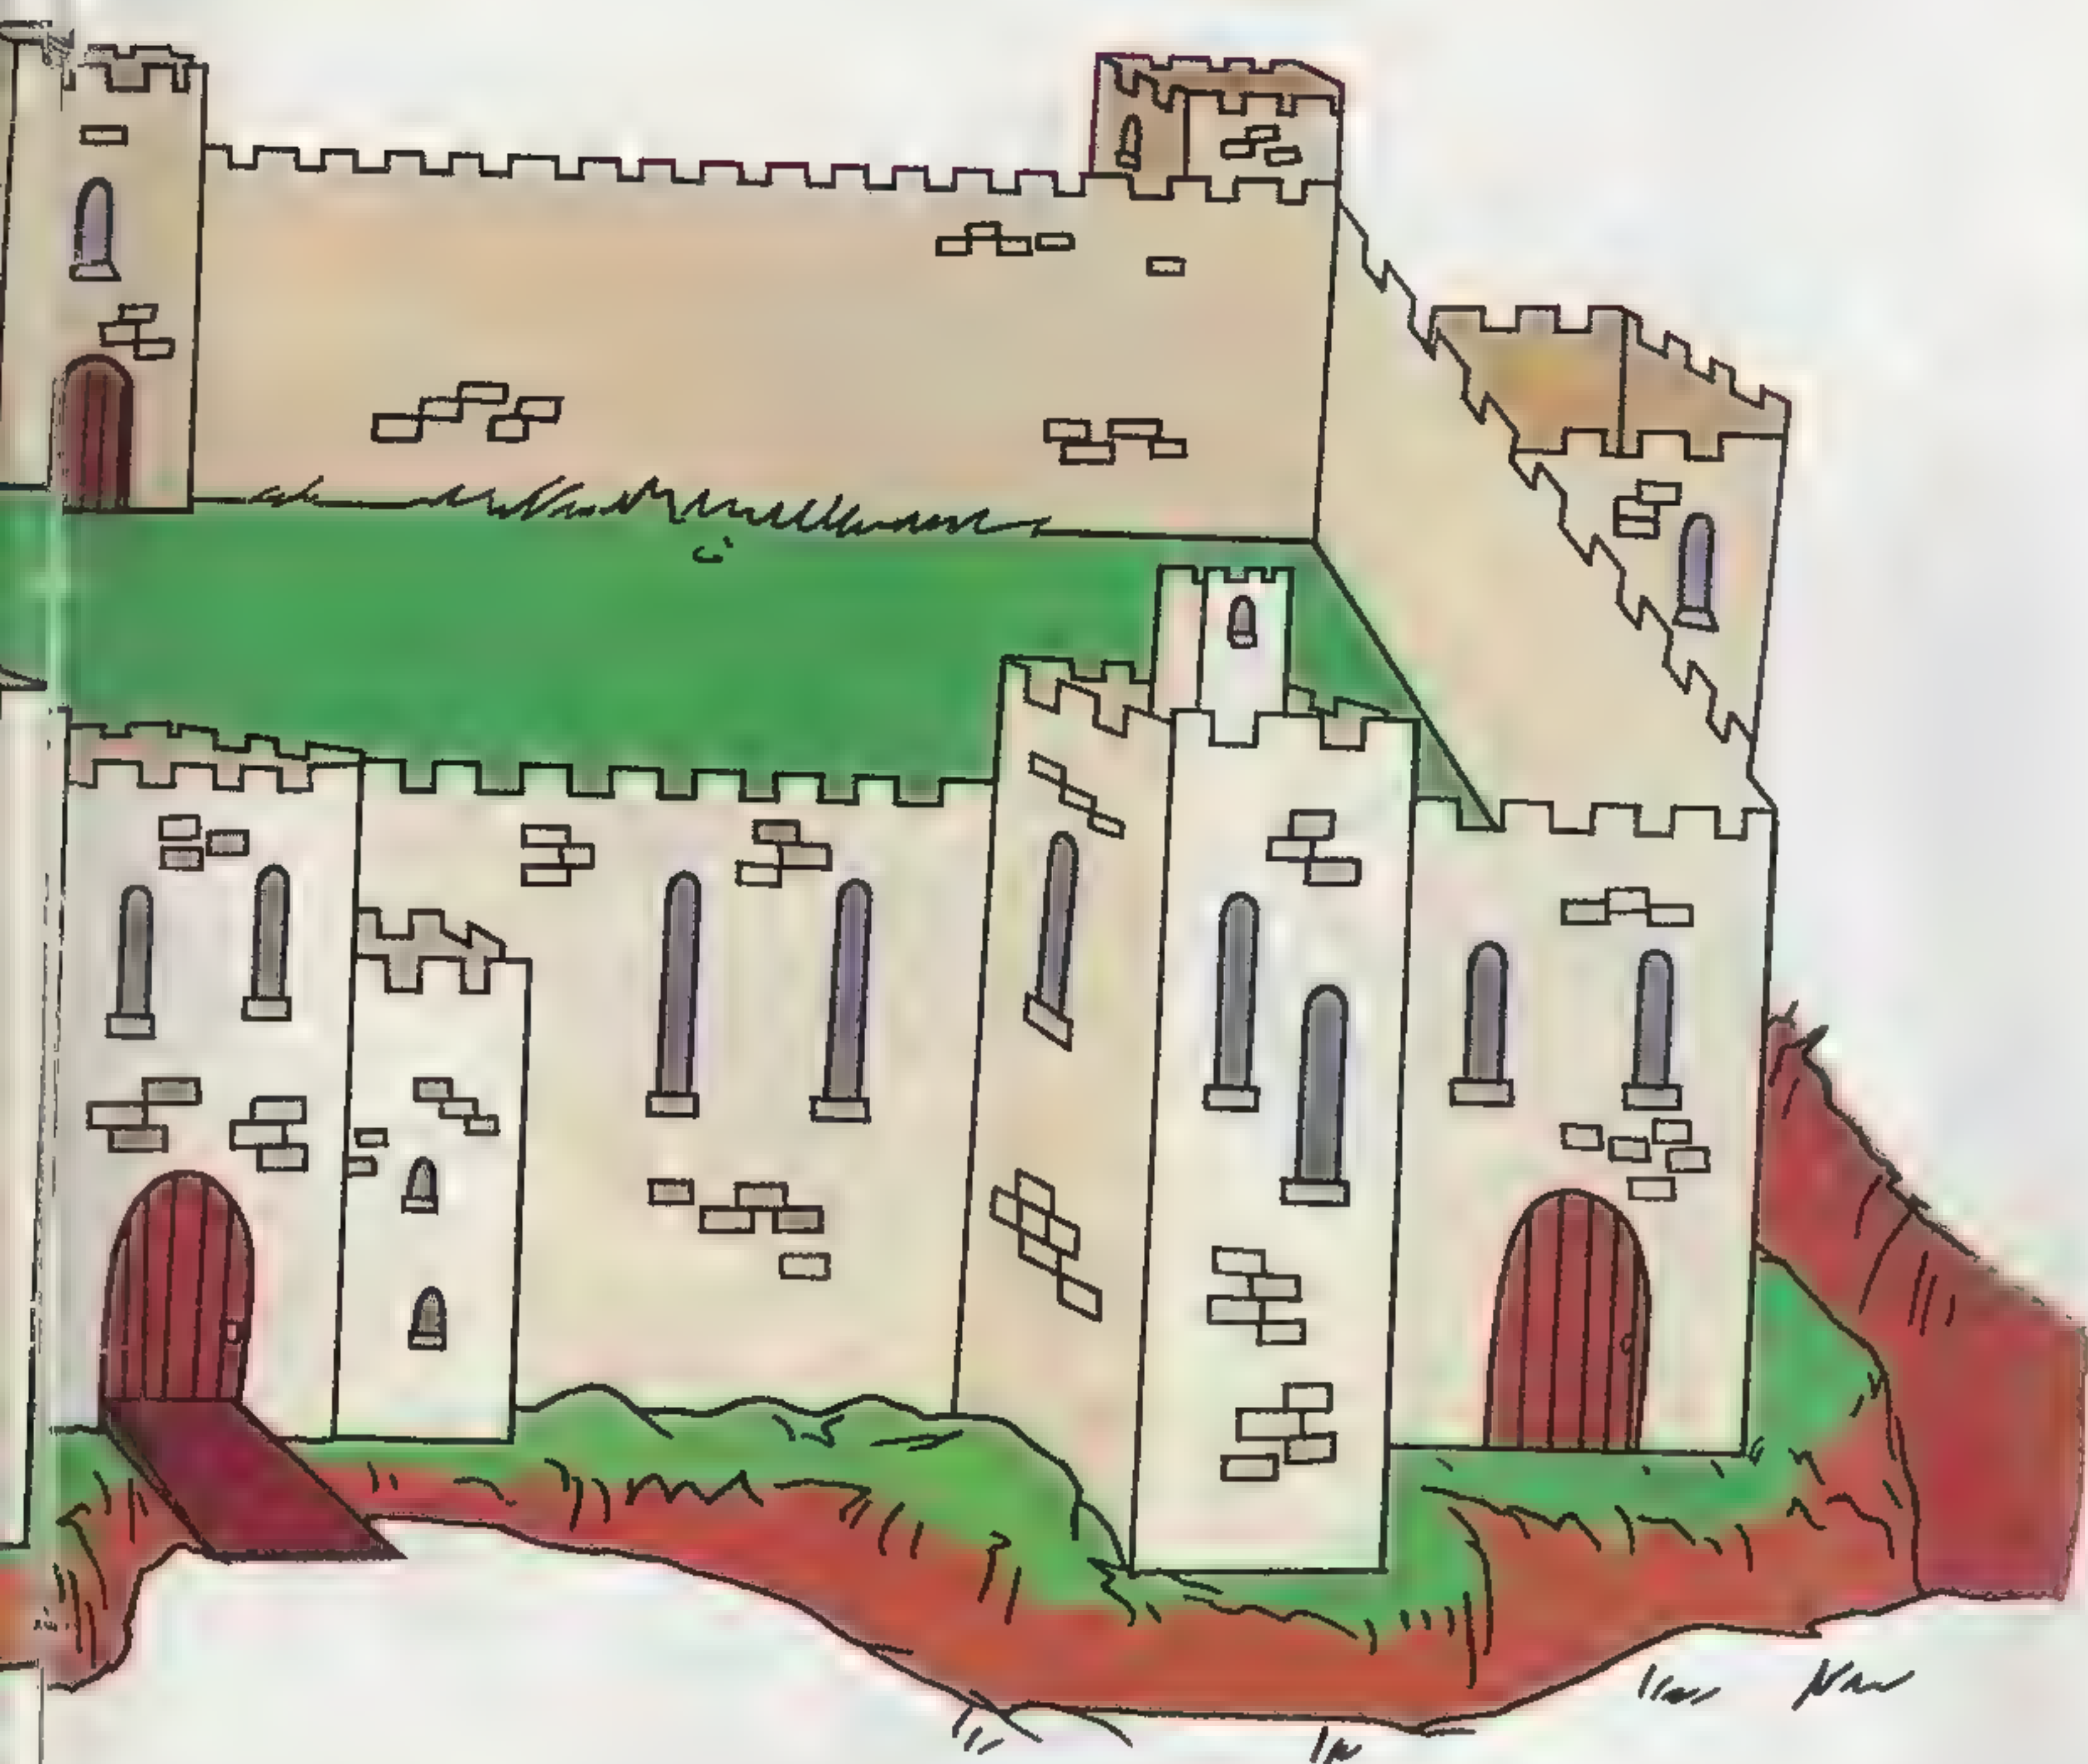

2) Cut several file folders apart lengthwise. Trim the indented

In the days of "Black Arrow" (airing January 6, 8, 12, 14, 16, 18, 22, 24, 28, and 31) wealthy land barons and knights built castles for shelter and as a stronghold. Medieval castles consisted of groups of domestic, farming, and storage structures surrounded by high stone walls and towers. Your castle model can have as many buildings as you wish. Here are some.

sides. Measure 1" in on the short sides, mark and score to create flaps for joining the walls. Cut crenels along the top the same way you did for the keep. Glue the flaps to create corners. To give your wall more support, staple or glue a 2" wide strip of heavy cardboard around the inside of the bottom.

3) Add wall towers to each corner using the directions for making a keep.

GATEHOUSE & DRAWBRIDGE:

1) Make a square tower using a long, narrow rectangle of file folder and folding it as you did for the keep. Cut crenels in the top. Cut an arched doorway in the center of one gatehouse wall and one in the castle wall.

2) Cut a rectangle just large enough to cover the door. Punch a small hole in each corner of the rectangle. Punch a hole at each corner of the door.

3) Hinge the bottom of the drawbridge by stringing thread through the bottom holes of the rectangle and the door and tying. Now thread a loop of string through the top door and rectangle holes as shown and tie. Pull on the loop to close the drawbridge. Release to open.

4) Draw doors, windows and stone surfaces on your castle with markers.
